LOS ANGELES, Calif. – March 26, 2008 – Wedbush Capital Partners is pleased to announce that ExtruMed, LLC has received a $29.5 million loan facility from Golub Capital. ExtruMed is a market leading provider of precision tubing solutions to the medical industry. Founded in 1990, and based in Placentia, Calif., ExtruMed’s products are used in medical devices and technology serving various therapy areas including cardiology, vascular, endosurgery, neurology, Ob/Gyn and urology.

“It is a pleasure to have Golub Capital as our partner to facilitate the continued growth of ExtruMed,” said Geoff Bland, managing director, Wedbush Capital. “Since our initial investment in ExtruMed in September 2005, the company’s founders and management have done an exceptional job of focusing on expanding its product lines and market reach. The new loan facility will be key in continuing ExtruMed’s organic growth and strategic acquisitions.”

ExtruMed has been owned by Wedbush Capital Partners and Inverness Graham Investments since September 2005. The debt provided by Golub Capital will be used to refinance the company’s existing debt and provide a cash dividend to the sponsors.

“We are very excited to have closed our first transaction with two private equity sponsors of the caliber of Inverness Graham and Wedbush Capital. We are pleased that we were able to provide them with the appropriate solution for their financing needs,” said Golub Capital Managing Director Charlie Riceman. “ExtruMed is a true leader in its field.
